Ministry of National Security lauds DCS and Tamarind Farm for revenue saving projects

Inmates at the Tamarind Farm Correctional Centre have embarked on a project at the facility saving the government significant revenue.

They refurbished a dormitory, carrying out all major aspects of the construction which included masonry, plumbing, and tiling under the supervision of correctional officers.

The project which saw 12 inmates engaged over a four-month period also provided practical work experience for them and is a step towards rehabilitation with a purpose.

Commenting on the economical efficiency of the project, State Minister in the Ministry of National Security, Pearnel

Charles Jr. stated, “In the context of scarce resources, it is often a daunting task for governments to do more with less. The Ministry of National Security applauds the hard work of the Department of Correctional Services (DCS) for its efforts to advance the quest for economic self sufficiency and boost access to rehabilitative activities for inmates and wards.”

The Ministry of National Security looks forward to more success as its departments and agencies continue to find ways to be more economical, efficient and effective while carrying out their mandate.
